

RADIO SPOTLIGHT

DIALING WITH DAVE

At 8.30 every Saturday night, Hugh Bartlett and Stan Francis tell you how to share the Wealth—and believe us—it's mighty profitable too! But right now, and more important, there is something else everyone can "share" in—that is Canada's Third Victory Loan! Just think how proud you would be to know you had a share in this $750,000,000 Victory Loan—that you, by a little self denial, were able to contribute to this very necessary, timely and worthwhile cause. Right now, everyone should be in the front line helping in Canada's war effort—and the best way we, as civilians, can do that, is to BUY VICTORY BONDS NOW! And don't forget to listen to the All Star Variety Show Wednesday nights 9.00 to 10.00 o'clock. It's a truly patriotic show—and the top ranking stars from stage, screen and radio are giving their time and talent to help boost the sales of War Savings Stamps and Certificates and Victory Bonds! It's broadcast for YOU from CKOC—1150 on the dial!

As dainty and quaint as a bouquet of carnations! You're right—we're referring to Carnation Bouquet. Along about 10.45 in the morning, you should sit down and relax—forget about working for a while and the best way to do that is to give a listen to the mellow tenor voice of Bailey-Axton and the Carnation choristers. To make this quarter hour of relaxation complete, Peter Donald adds a bit of homey philosophy—that's each Tuesday and Thursday morning at 10.45.

Even in these days of gas rationing, there's one evening in the week when you don't have to stay at home—because every Wednesday at 8.30 you can hop aboard the B-A Bandwagon as it winds its musical way down harmony highway. Dedicated to the promotion of such ventures as the Milk for Britain Fun, the Optimist Chocolate Fund, publicizing the activities of the Hamilton Civilian Defence Committee regarding black-outs and air raid precautions, the Bandwagon has on board each week a representative from one of the local organizations or service clubs to inform the public of their various activities. If you're planning on going for a ride—remember to be punctual—because the B-A Bandwagon pulls out at 8.30 sharp.

Everyone has his own idea about blending rhythm, but Eric Wild really has the proper technique, and proves it when conducting his orchestra on the Blended Rhythm program Tuesday evenings 8.30. In this half hour of fun, nonsense and, of course, good music, your emcee is Alan Young. Need we elaborate further? If you enjoy a fast moving, fun-packed radio program, Blended Rhythm 830 on Tuesday nights, demands your attention. And Remember, you hear it from CKOC—1150 on your radio dial!

Shorter Hours Do Not Lower Output

In nearly all the forty-odd Royal Ordnance Factories, which employ 300,000 workers, the standard hours per week are now fifty-five for women and sixty for men. These employees used to work seventy or more hours a week. But the output per worker is as good now as when longer hours were maintained.

Limitations of the normal working week were recommended by the Medical Research Council after exhaustive research and investigation. The experience of the ord-

THIS way for steamers to the Continent," announces a tattered peacetime poster at a British port. It is not so out of date as you might think. Only the other evening I boarded a ship there which took me to the Continent. But instead of a happy vacation steamer, the ship was a speedy motor launch—a unit of Coastal Forces, flying the White Ensign of the Royal Navy. She was engaged on a hazardous operation which took us to within two miles of a German-occupied town.

It was a town which I had last seen on vacation. Then it was ablaze with lights from a thousand doorways—from cafes, cinemas, flashing advertising signs and the uncurtained windows of homes. Now there would be nothing to see except the faint outlines of building tops against the slightly lighter background of the sky, and an occasional wandering light from the masked headlamp of an auto or truck driven by the enemy.

Details of the operation were known only to the ship's captain when the motor launch cast off from her British base.

"Tell the gun crews to keep their eyes peeled," the captain said. "It may be lively to night."

In the wheelhouse the navigator unfolded his charts and started work, stopping occasionally to give the order for a change of course into the voice pipe by his side. On this one man, probably more than on any other in the ship, depended the success or failure of the operation. And he was twenty-four years old, a bank clerk in New Zealand less than three years ago.

Without the help of the navigational lights of peacetime he had to plot the ship's course to a predetermined point two miles off the enemy's coastline across many miles of sea, through mine-strewn waters. Working with stop watch and tables in his black-out chart room, the young navigator kept the ship on a sure course for her destination.

A little way out an old wreck on the port quarter gave the gun crews the chance of a little practice and brought the captain scrambling up on deck. From that moment till the finish of the operation, many hours later, he never left the bridge except for a quick visit to the chart-room to confer with the navigator.

Twilight had given way to full night when brilliant flashes asters illuminated the horizon. "An air attack on one of our convoys or on a coast town," said the captain.

The three look-out men on the bridge were on the alert for the ship was now in the danger zone, the home waters of E-boats. The gun crews were ready for instant action. Ahead, the ship's bow cut a phosphorescent wedge in the dark water. Fire-tipped waves, caught up in the luminous wake, sent green shadows racing over the ship's upper works.

"We're too good a target for aircraft," said the captain. "Half speed ahead!"

That reduced the phosphorescent glare as we neared the enemy coastline.

Ashore a twinkling light stabbed the darkness every few seconds, a signal by the Germans for their coastwise convoys. That meant our presence was still undetected or the light would surely have been extinguished.

We sailed farther and farther in till we could see the outlines of the buildings ashore and the automobile lights. Now the engines were just ticking over, but they were ready to leap full ahead in an emergency.

As the ship turned for home, the twinkling light ashore died and did not come on again. A star shell burst from the shore batteries. Something had alarmed the shore nance plants has confirmed the findings—that there is a limit to individual capacity, and that excessive hours are bad for production. A sudden emergency spurt, such as the workers put on after Dunkirk, may increase the output temporarily, but it cannot be kept up.

watchers. Fortunately the star shells were all between the ship and the shore. That meant we would not be silhouetted for their guns. More and more star shells screamed high into the sky. Searchlights sent long white fingers skimming in vain over the surface of the waves as we switched to "half-speed ahead" and sagged away.

Now we were clear and opened up our engines. And so home with the first gray streaks of dawn.

Absence Of Silk, Nylon Due to War Necessities

Patriotic consolation for wartime absence of silk and nylon hosiery is that 136 pairs of these stockings make the equivalent of one parachute.

Another comforting factor is the presence of rayon, the manufacture of which has greatly improved and is improving all the time. Rayon stockings look well and deserve the best of care.

Two facts about rayon cannot be stressed too strongly according to Consumer Information Service—it takes a good twenty-four hours to dry and the fibres are very weak while wet. No process has been discovered to overcome this weakness so washing rayon hosiery should consist only of a gentle squeezing through mild, lukewarm suds and a careful rinsing in water of the same temperature. Rubbing is apt to damage the tender, wet fibres, so any rough handling is done "at owner's risk". For this same reason the stockings should never be worn until perfectly dry.

While the feet of rayon hose are quite constant in size, the legs have a tendency to elongate. When purchasing, a couple of inches can be allowed for this stretching.

Peace conferences fail to abolish war for the same reason that prayer meetings fail to abolish sin—those who ought to attend them won't go.

Christmas Mail

The Post Office Department has announced that Christmas mails to the Overseas Forces must be posted not later than 10th November. A huge volume of Christmas mail for the Canadian armed forces overseas is anticipated and it is advisable that gifts should be sent now—the earlier the better—to ensure timely delivery.

Parcels should be packed well and no fresh fruits should be enclosed. It is illegal to enclose matches, safety matches, lighter fluid or any other inflammable substance. Such a practice endangers all other parcels. Any postmaster will give details concerning the regulations governing the sending of parcels or letters overseas to the fighting forces. 11 lbs. is the limit that can be sent to soldiers.

"Now WE hold a Mortgage on Canada Ma!"

"Sure we're working harder than ever—but that never hurt anybody. We're working longer hours and putting our money away in Victory Bonds. Now we'll be paid interest instead of paying it."

"When peace comes we'll have money saved to buy new equipment for our farm—might even put up a new barn—maybe take a holiday!"

"Meanwhile, we can't think of any safer or better place to invest our money than in bonds backed by our country. And we can't think of any better purpose than helping our fighting boys get the jump on the enemy. When we read about our lads bombing Germany, we can think that maybe we raised one of those bombs on our own farm."

"So that's our plan from now until peace comes. We will work to... and lend. We'll have it to spend later. And we can look forward to getting that new tractor and that fine new automobile we're saving for now."

"We'll be laying up for ourselves the best of all investments—VICTORY BONDS—backed by all the resources of the Dominion of Canada; they yield a fair rate of interest; we can borrow against them; and they are readily saleable when we need cash!"

HOW TO BUY

Give your order to the Victory Loan salesman who calls on you. Or place it in the hands of any branch of any bank, or give it to any trust company. Or send it to your local Victory Loan Headquarters. Or you can authorize your employer to start a regular payroll savings plan for you. Bonds may be bought in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger. Still Waiting

As Premier Gordon Covert, reads his new and compact cabinet, several figures under the surface of former premier Hepburn's smoothly operated setup are appearing, though many had suspected their existence for some time. The note of Hon. Farquhar Oliver, in which he tendered his resignation from the Ontario government, confirmed the fact in no uncertain terms. Mr. Oliver complained of the manner in which Mr. Hepburn "handed" the office to his successor, and of the fact that, with the term of the government extended, no provision had been made for the filling of seats which were left vacant through deaths and a resignation. "In the 1934 elections, I criticized the Henry government for extending its legislative life and leaving without representation a number of constituencies for a period of beyond a reasonable time," he wrote.

Mr. Oliver hits upon a point which Mr. Hepburn has conveniently forgotten, and which Mr. Hepburn's political opponents in the Ontario house would like to have forgotten. When Mr. Hepburn was campaigning for election against "Honest George" Henry, the fact that several seats in the Ontario House were vacant, and the fact that Mr. Henry's government ran its term of office to the limit, provided his followers with verbal ammunition. Mr. Hepburn was at that time complaining of a situation which, for the past year and a half, he has been cursing on the floor of the House. Developments of this week have shown that Mr. Hepburn's colleagues were not in full accord with his stand.

In the meantime, the appeal of the G.C.F. party against the verdict of the appellate court refusing that party an injunction which would have forced an election has been rejected by a higher court, and the party leaders have announced, with a pardonable shrug, a further appeal, this time to the Supreme Court of Canada. The success or failure of their efforts will indicate to what extent the constitutional rights of the people of the Dominion are really theirs.

Democracy On Trial

FOR some time we have been reading of varied criticisms of the Congress of the United States. To say that the criticisms are unjustified would be to stretch the point even further than to say that they are entirely without foundation. The parallel between the United States legislators and those in Ottawa at this time is more than curious. Reasons given for the low calibre of the House of Commons, regarded by many as about as low as it has been in the Dominion's history, is given as the voters' preoccupation with the war. The war, it has been contended, is much more vital than elections and the personalities concerned. This reason shows a failure to understand that parliament is the direct representation of the people who elected it, and that to parliament has been entrusted the duties of shaping our national affairs.

It has been said that ministers of the crown have expressed impatience with Parliament, and that the members are, collectively, a hindrance to the attainment of the clearest and most efficient form of government. This fact might be true. To read the pages of Hansard would not lead anyone to a different opinion. The long hours of talk arising from some trivial question that seems quite pointless in regard to the greater issues are commonplace occurrences during the sessions. In their avid search for information on the number of year-old cars killed or the amount of heavy imported into Canada during the course of the year, the members can find little time for a study of the Canadian situation and what it entails. One man, speaking about the new income tax and succession duties, recently stated that the minister and those associated with him in the department could if they so desired bring in a law which would contradict itself and virtually strip everyone of all their possessions, and, after a long discussion on little points which made no material difference, could have it passed in the House.

Democracy is now on trial, but its fate will not be determined by the worth or otherwise of our form of representative government. If the government has relegated Parliament to the status of a glorified rubber stamp, the reason is one which is the concern of every voter, and the remedy is in the hands of those who determine who will or will not sit in Parliament.

Help Wanted—Adult

THE kids of the community have been invited to turn out tomorrow night and try for some of the many prizes which are being offered by the Merchants' committee of the Grimsby Chamber of Commerce. The affair is, of course, the annual Halloween parade, and the prizes being offered are so plentiful that there should be a big turnout. The parade starts at Main Street East and winds up at the Grimsby Arena.

Those responsible for the show have sent out a call for more adults. During the last few years adult participation in the parade has been growing, and sometimes the older kids seemed to be enjoying themselves as much as the youngsters. Their carryings-on, under the guise of paint and make-up, provided a touch to the proceedings that was most welcome, and more adults are wanted for this year's parade. Some grown-ups did so well last year that their identity was not determined until after the show was over.

The only conclusion to be drawn from this fact is that if the older kids will turn out and do their part, and are careful enough about how they disguise themselves, no one need know that they were "in action."

Recruits Wanted

THE Canadian Women's Auxiliary Army, now a full fledged unit of the Canadian Army and better known as the CWAC and its members known by the group of letters pluralized, is appealing for recruits. The main purpose of this army is to supply women to do work which is now being done by men, and to so make available for the essentially masculine part of the war those whose work is important, but who could be replaced by women. The list of trades called for in the appeal is extensive and varied, and there are opportunities offered for recruits for advancement in the same way that their brothers now are advanced. Trade pay, and courses by which various trades may be qualified for not only will stand the prospective "quack" a better chance of promotion, it will fit her for the time when she will be returning to civil life.

Recruiting in Grimsby is a member of the CWAC who is well known here, and her experiences in the women's forces have been happy ones. Pte. Isobel Smith says that the first few weeks were the toughest, but now it is "grand." Several recruits in the Canadian Active Army have been heard to say the same thing.

The call for women to join the ranks is urgent. Accommodations for them, and the care which they receive is of the best. Recreational facilities and the usual concomitants of military life are present. The division is a new one, and should prove a novel experience to any who join it. The appeal for recruits is commended to all who might be interested. Pte. Smith is willing to answer questions, and discuss the life in and the work of the newest part of the Canadian army without any obligation.

Campaign Not Over

THE fact that the Victory Loan is proceeding at a nice clip locally does not mean that the battle is by any means finished. The campaign does not end until next week, and there are several local people who have not been called upon as yet by one of the canvassers. The fact that the total sales to date appear to be well up is no reason why any citizens should revise their proposed purchase downwards. The objective set should be regarded only as a minimum figure.

To any who might not have invested as much as they could, or any who have yet to buy bonds, it is recommended that they take a look at the window at the Current and Betzner Hardware store. In that window they will see one of the most outstanding displays ever to occupy a window on Main Street. The several hundred local men included in the group of pictures is attracting much attention, and the idea, which is being put out in Beamsville, has been given publicity over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation as one that might be followed by other communities.

Canada's war effort is dependent upon the needs of our army. The money required to maintain the armed forces in their great undertaking is available, and whether or not people buy Victory Bonds is up to them. The government has no debt to clear its head, and if the money is not obtained at a rate of interest, it will be acquired in the form of taxation. The difference between these two procedures is that money obtained by taxation is lost to the individuals for all time, but money acquired by borrowing will come back at a fair rate of interest.

Canada's showing in the Victory Loan campaign has been excellent. There should be no reason why this campaign should not be just as successful. It will succeed only if everyone does their utmost in answering the call of their country. If the next appeal is successful, but only one person sits back from doing his or her part, then the war cannot be actually termed successful.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

It is far from nice to contemplate but this recent statement by Col. George Drew should make Canadians think: "In Brussels today a rate is worth the equivalent of two dollars and eighty cents. What would these starving Brussels people give if they could meet to decide their contribution to rid themselves of beasts who occupy their country? They would give everything they have. Looking at these facts, what will you give?" What of the conditions in other countries? They are as bad if not worse than in Belgium.—St. Catharines Standard.

SAID AND WRITTEN

1944 TOO LATE

(Edited European leaders in Great Britain)

They believe "that a victory, if it comes too late, will make it exceedingly difficult to save the civilization of Europe as it is now known. If the war continues into 1944, without this indication of victory, it may well be too late to save Europe."

George Field, secretary of Freedom House

DEFENCE IN EGYPT

In answer to the "voices" who accuse Britain of hoarding arms and men, let us say that for every tank received by her she sends out 15 to battle fronts somewhere in the world. Eighty per cent. of her munitions leave her shores. Her war machines are convoyed everywhere. Her men are fighting in the thousands on all battle fronts. In Egypt lies the defense of the Caucasus and Stalingrad. It is time to teach everywhere the value of undying faith in Canada and in our British partnership in which victory lies.

George A. Drew, leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature.

ALONE FOR 27 MONTHS

For 27 months Canada was the only nation in the western hemisphere which was at war, he said, and we must acknowledge that you recognized long before we did the true nature of the world struggle in which we now are partners. We have watched your march to war—and we have learned a lot. We watched you train and equip a citizen army. We watched you transform Canada into an aerodrome for the United Nations. We watched you create an air force of your own which has helped to wipe the enemy out of his own skies. We watched your farmers and artisans and clerks take to the sea as though they had been born to it. With growing admiration we watched your people strip away the frills and comforts of their peace-time standard of life and discipline themselves for the rigors of a war-time economy.

Elmer Davis, head of the U.S. Office of War Information.

NEED FOR SPEED

I believe that every member of the government is as anxious as any one to open a second front whenever it is feasible to do so. It may be much closer than any of us know. I hope the governments of the United Nations are taking into consideration the vital urgency of striking without delay.

Sir John Wardlaw-Milne, M.P.

STILL TO WIN

Do not delude yourselves that the battle against inflation has been won. Despite everything done and to be done in the fields of taxation and borrowing, there remains a very heavily increasing purchasing power in the hands of the people. Furthermore... the supply of goods and services available for the civilian population must become more and more restricted. The danger is plain—the excess purchasing power pressing against the short supply of goods and services will force prices up unless direct controls fight every step of the way.

Donald Gordon, Chairman, War-time Prices and Trade Board.

DREAM OF UNITY

If the American forces should appear before Dakar the whole of France would stand erect and cheer them. The French people are eagerly waiting for their American brothers.

You may be sure that the French people will be eternally grateful to the American people and that our two glorious democracies will ultimately become the great, powerful countries of which Washington, Lafayette and Abraham Lincoln hoped and dreamed.

WORDS OF YESTERYEAR—SOCIETY'S POWER

I know of no safe depository of the ultimate powers of society but the people themselves; and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it from them, but to inform their discretion by education.

Thomas Jefferson, 1820.

WINE FROM OTHER PRESSES

Don't Scrap Our Navy

The Calgary Herald

PARTICULARLY encouraging, aside from the somewhat meagre details of U-boat sinkings, is the announcement that Canada now has 40,000 men in her naval forces. Quite possibly that number will be increased considerably before the war ends. In any event the Dominion will have a reserve of trained sailors far exceeding the number available at any time prior to the outbreak of war.

The prospect is an encouraging one, that is if the Government of the future proposes to make use of this available manpower when the war ends. Canada is, or should be, a maritime nation. Thanks to private enterprise, she has had for many years a substantial stake in world ocean carrying. But there is still far too much dependence upon foreign bottoms to carry the vast exports of Canada's normal peacetime trading. When these exports are carried by foreigners the profits accrue to foreigners and Canada is the loser. She can build the ships; that has already been demonstrated. She will have the men for a great merchant marine. Why not take advantage of this obvious fact?

At the same time it is to be hoped that Canada will maintain a navy of considerable force. British history has proved that naval and mercantile strength go hand in hand. One cannot flourish without the other. It is to be hoped that the disastrous situation of some years ago, when Canada's small navy was sold for junk and her sailors turned adrift, will not be repeated. Canada needs a navy, in peace or war.

A Long War Forseen

The Bowmanville Statesman

WHEN has taught us the strength of Hun emplacements. We now should know that all the Europe the Hun has touched is laid for a long drawn siege. . . . and it must come to that. With the Ukraine and all the land resources at hand and with slaves to till it, slaves who are unarmed, the Nazis can hold out, with food and arms, for a long long time. The possibilities of internal revolution are not what they were in 1918. The North Atlantic battle has not yet been won. Instead, so far, we have won nothing save the growing resentment of the Russians. Well then since we know we shall have to fight it out in Europe, Next, having won in Europe, we must turn against a more formidable foe in the East, the cruel, heartless Japanese, who have overrun a greater space than Hitler, who have brought us to our knees for rubber, tin, tea, spices . . . and prestige . . . and upon us while so doing. Read what those who know the Japs have to say about them. "They cannot be beaten until they are killed for few will surrender." That, conservatively, may take a few years . . . and then some. All of which adds up to the prospect of 1947 or later may see us still battling . . . but winning.

Reconstructed Britain

The New York Times

WHILE a few months after Germany had ceased the systematic bombing of one British town after another the English began to discuss rebuilding. Populations had been uprooted, but cities had been shifted. There could be no return to the old Britain, with its haphazard, speculative building, its slums, its sprawling seashore bungalow colonies, its ribbonlike roads. It was agreed that townsmen must enjoy some of the advantages of the country. How the architects and city planners have risen to the opportunity is apparent in the drawings that we published a few days ago of the new around St. Paul's and of the apartment and office buildings projected for the new Ring Road, with highways for slow and fast traffic, open spaces and a new Ludgate Hill.

Before any British city can be modernized in this fashion the problem of land ownership must be solved. Hence the appointment of an expert committee in January, 1941, under the able presidency of Mr. Justice Uthwaite. That committee has now submitted a final report which has been acclaimed by the British press. No longer is building to be left to the uncontrolled will of land owners. Neither are they to be stripped of their holdings without fair compensation—a compulsory compensation which will be based on pre-war values, so that there will be no profiteering. Nothing like the nationalization of land in communist-ruled—only control of development. We have, then, a clear recognition of the state's right to reconstruct bombed and unlighted areas in the national interest but without abolishing property rights. Private ownership will not be suppressed, but it must conform with the official architectural and social plans. Evidently Britain will not repeat the mistakes made after the London fire of 1666, when Sir Christopher Wren's plans were forgotten. Though the Government is committed to planned reconstruction, the Uthwaite recommendations cannot be carried out without legislation that calls for the appointment of an unimpaired Minister of National Development who will be assisted by a planning board. The Uthwaite conclusions will probably be considerably modified, but when they are adopted a new Britain is bound to rise out of the ashes and rubble of the old.

HARD TIME PARTY—

The fellowships group of the Baptist church, under the leadership of Miss Kay Onischuk, held a hard time party on Tuesday evening in the Sunday school hall, opening with a Grand March.

The group graced the occasion with appropriate costumes for which prizes were awarded at the close of the evening.

Apple spearing and marshmallow contests were indulged in, followed by a murder story contest, and the whole topped off with sandwiches—each person making his or her own on the spot—and sweet cider.

Prize winners in the various contests were Kay Onischuk, Bernice Byford, Warren Nelson and Gordon Wilcock.

The decorations in the hall followed the Halloween theme.

I.O.D.E.

At the October meeting Lincoln Loyalist chapter, I.O.D.E., held on Monday afternoon, with Mrs. L. A. Bromley, regent, presiding, Mrs. Walter Westlake, convener of the war services committee, reported that many knitted articles had been completed for the 125 Christmas boxes for local soldiers overseas and for 12 ditty bags for the navy. Seven prisoners of war will also be remembered in the Christmas shipments.

Mrs. Harold Johnson was appointed convener of a committee to make arrangements for the annual Remembrance day service, being held on November 8th at Moore's theatre.

The resignation of Mrs. Frank Miller as convener of the chapter's immigration and Canadianization work, necessitated through illness, was accepted with regret. The appointment of a successor, was laid over to the next meeting.

The Girl Guides' report, given by Miss Harriet Walsh, showed a promising increase. There are now eight patrols in the Girl Guide company. A special ceremony will be held next Tuesday, when several Brownies will move up to the Guides company.

In order to conserve gasoline, and because of travelling conditions, no large bridge parties will be held by the chapters this winter. Instead, two tournaments will be held during the winter months in private homes.

The financial statement showed a balance of $78.02 in general funds and $612.48 in the war funds.

Mrs. Bromley announced that a meeting open to all women of Grimsby will be held in the I.O.D.E. rooms this afternoon for the purpose of organizing a sub-committee of the consumers' branch of the war-time prices and trade board in Grimsby. Mrs. Stuart Watt, of St. Catharines, representative for Lincoln county, is the speaker.

Obituary

JAMES MAINLAND

The funeral took place to Queen's Lawn cemetery on Monday afternoon of a former well known resident of North Grimsby, in the person of James Mainland, who passed away at Woodstock on Tuesday last, in his 53rd year.

Deceased was born at Fonthill and came to reside on the Ridge Road west when a small lad. He later farmed there and when still a young man went to Toronto and later to Florida where he married and resided for many years. About a year and a half ago he returned to Canada to reside at Woodstock.

His wife predeceased him in 1934. He leaves to mourn his loss four sisters, Mrs. W. H. VanDuser, North Grimsby; Mrs. Rev. Mann, Kitchener; Mrs. McDonald, Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Hooper, Dashwood, Ontario.

The casket bearers were Murray Beamer, Morris Udell, Harry Sturch, Wesley Brand, John Bowditch and Lewis Hawkey.

Fairyland To Run Balance Of Week

Hard luck has dogged the steps of Roy Leach and the Mountain View Fairyland Carnival that he has been staging for the benefit of the Cigarette Fund.

The show was rained out of its original dates the middle of the month and then cold weather kept the attendance down away below par for the first three nights of this week.

Hoping that better weather will prevail the show will continue to be operated every night for the balance of this week. Sensational Marion and all the other shows and attractions will be running full blast and no better way could be found to spend the odd hour than by visiting Fairyland tonight, tomorrow and Saturday nights.

The local Red Cross branch, meeting in regular session on Tuesday, considered the pros and cons of a St. John's Ambulance course in Grimsby during the coming months, and Miss A. M. Crane was appointed convener to make necessary arrangements.

To begin with, there must be twenty-five to thirty persons prepared to take the course, and there is a fee of $3.00 to join. It takes six weeks to complete the course, one night a week, with a doctor to lecture, and qualified nurses to instruct following the lecture at each meeting. Another doctor conducts the examination at the end of the six weeks.

It is now possible for the local branch to accept contributions to the Chinese or Russian relief.

The appointment of a Nelson officer for prisoner of war parcels and information who will contact all near relatives in Grimsby of prisoners of war will shortly be made.

The thanks of the committee are due to Mr. Hugh Whyte, of Pettit and Whyte, for personally carrying the insurance premium amounting to $3.50 per year on the Red Cross booth; also to Grimsby Salvage Committee for a cheque of $100.00.

Red Cross Christmas cards, depicting the four women's services, will be on sale within a couple of weeks at a booth in Dymond's Drug store and at the White Elephant. They may also be obtained from group leaders. Samples are now on display at Dymond's Drug store. Save a few friends to send them to.

Unless you are deliberately kind to every creature, you will often be cruel to many.—J. Lusk.

Interesting Show Of Antiques By St. Andrew's Guild

If proof were required that Grimsby has roots reaching far back into the past it was amply given at the exhibition of antiques and curios gathered together at St. Andrew's hall by members of the Guild and their friends on Tuesday afternoon.

Take, for instance, the framed map of the Province of Upper Canada, loaned by Nellie Rutherford. It bears date, April, 1800, being compiled at the request of Major General, John G. Simcoe at Charing Cross, London, and shows the counties between Quebec and Lake Huron that were surveyed and, to a certain extent, settled at that period, the Forty being clearly marked.

A grain shovel, hay fork and broom, each made from a single piece of wood, relics of farming activities at the Forty, was a contribution of Mrs. R. Powell. Belonging to the same historic period was a powder horn and a sword cane, the property of the Rutherford family.

Mrs. Thomas Allan had a number of interesting exhibits—quilts, bedspreads, silverware and china, all dating back to an early period. A brass lantern clock attracted much attention, as did the music box that played four tunes. Mrs. H. G. Brownlee was the owner of these.

There was a manuscript book of music, each song illustrated with an exquisite pen drawing. Needlework pictures, cross-stitch, samplers, old linens and lace, jewelry and fans, many quilts, ancient and modern, knitted and woven bedspreads, china, glass and silver, made up a considerable part of the exhibit, while a small spinning wheel loaned by Mrs. T. R. Hunter attracted a circle of admirers on its own behalf.

A tiny dress shirt, about the size of one's hand, with tucked bosom, and put together with invisible stitches was a popular exhibit. Belonging to it were tiny square samplers of various types of stitches, mends, joins and darts.

A voluminous gown, high waisted, low necked, with full bishop sleeves, was a star exhibit. We recall pictures of Queen Victoria's mother, the Duchess of Kent, wearing just such a gown. A "coal scuttle" bonnet would be worn with this frock.

In the field of curios, Major M. F. Baker had a notable collection of African weapons and tools from Mashonaland and Matabeleland, along with musical instruments and articles of personal adornment which showed the high state of civilization achieved by the natives of these districts.

There were cannon balls of the 1812 period, and souvenirs of the war of 1914-18. A life-size dog, carved from a single piece of wood, every hair in its proper place, was a most attractive exhibit. Of Italian workmanship, it was loaned by Mrs. DeLapante, and by common consent was taken to be a St. Bernard.

It has been possible to mention only a few of the many beautiful and interesting articles exhibited, each one of which has its own story. "Who would have thought" was a remark heard more than once, "that there were so many lovely 'old things' in Grimsby?"

To Mrs. H. G. Brownlee and her fellow workers of St. Andrew's Guild great credit is due for bringing these articles, rich in historic interest, together for the pleasure of students and lovers of the good old times.

Life's greatest tragedy is the murder of a beautiful theory by a gang of brutal facts.

One thing at least can be said for the illiterate, the dull thinking class, the hot polio, the vulgar rabble—they never started a war all by themselves.

get his book in print, the public probably would not know about it, for there is little space for book reviews in the newspapers. American books cannot be brought into Britain for resale without import licenses, and these are granted only in cases of medical, technical or educational books.

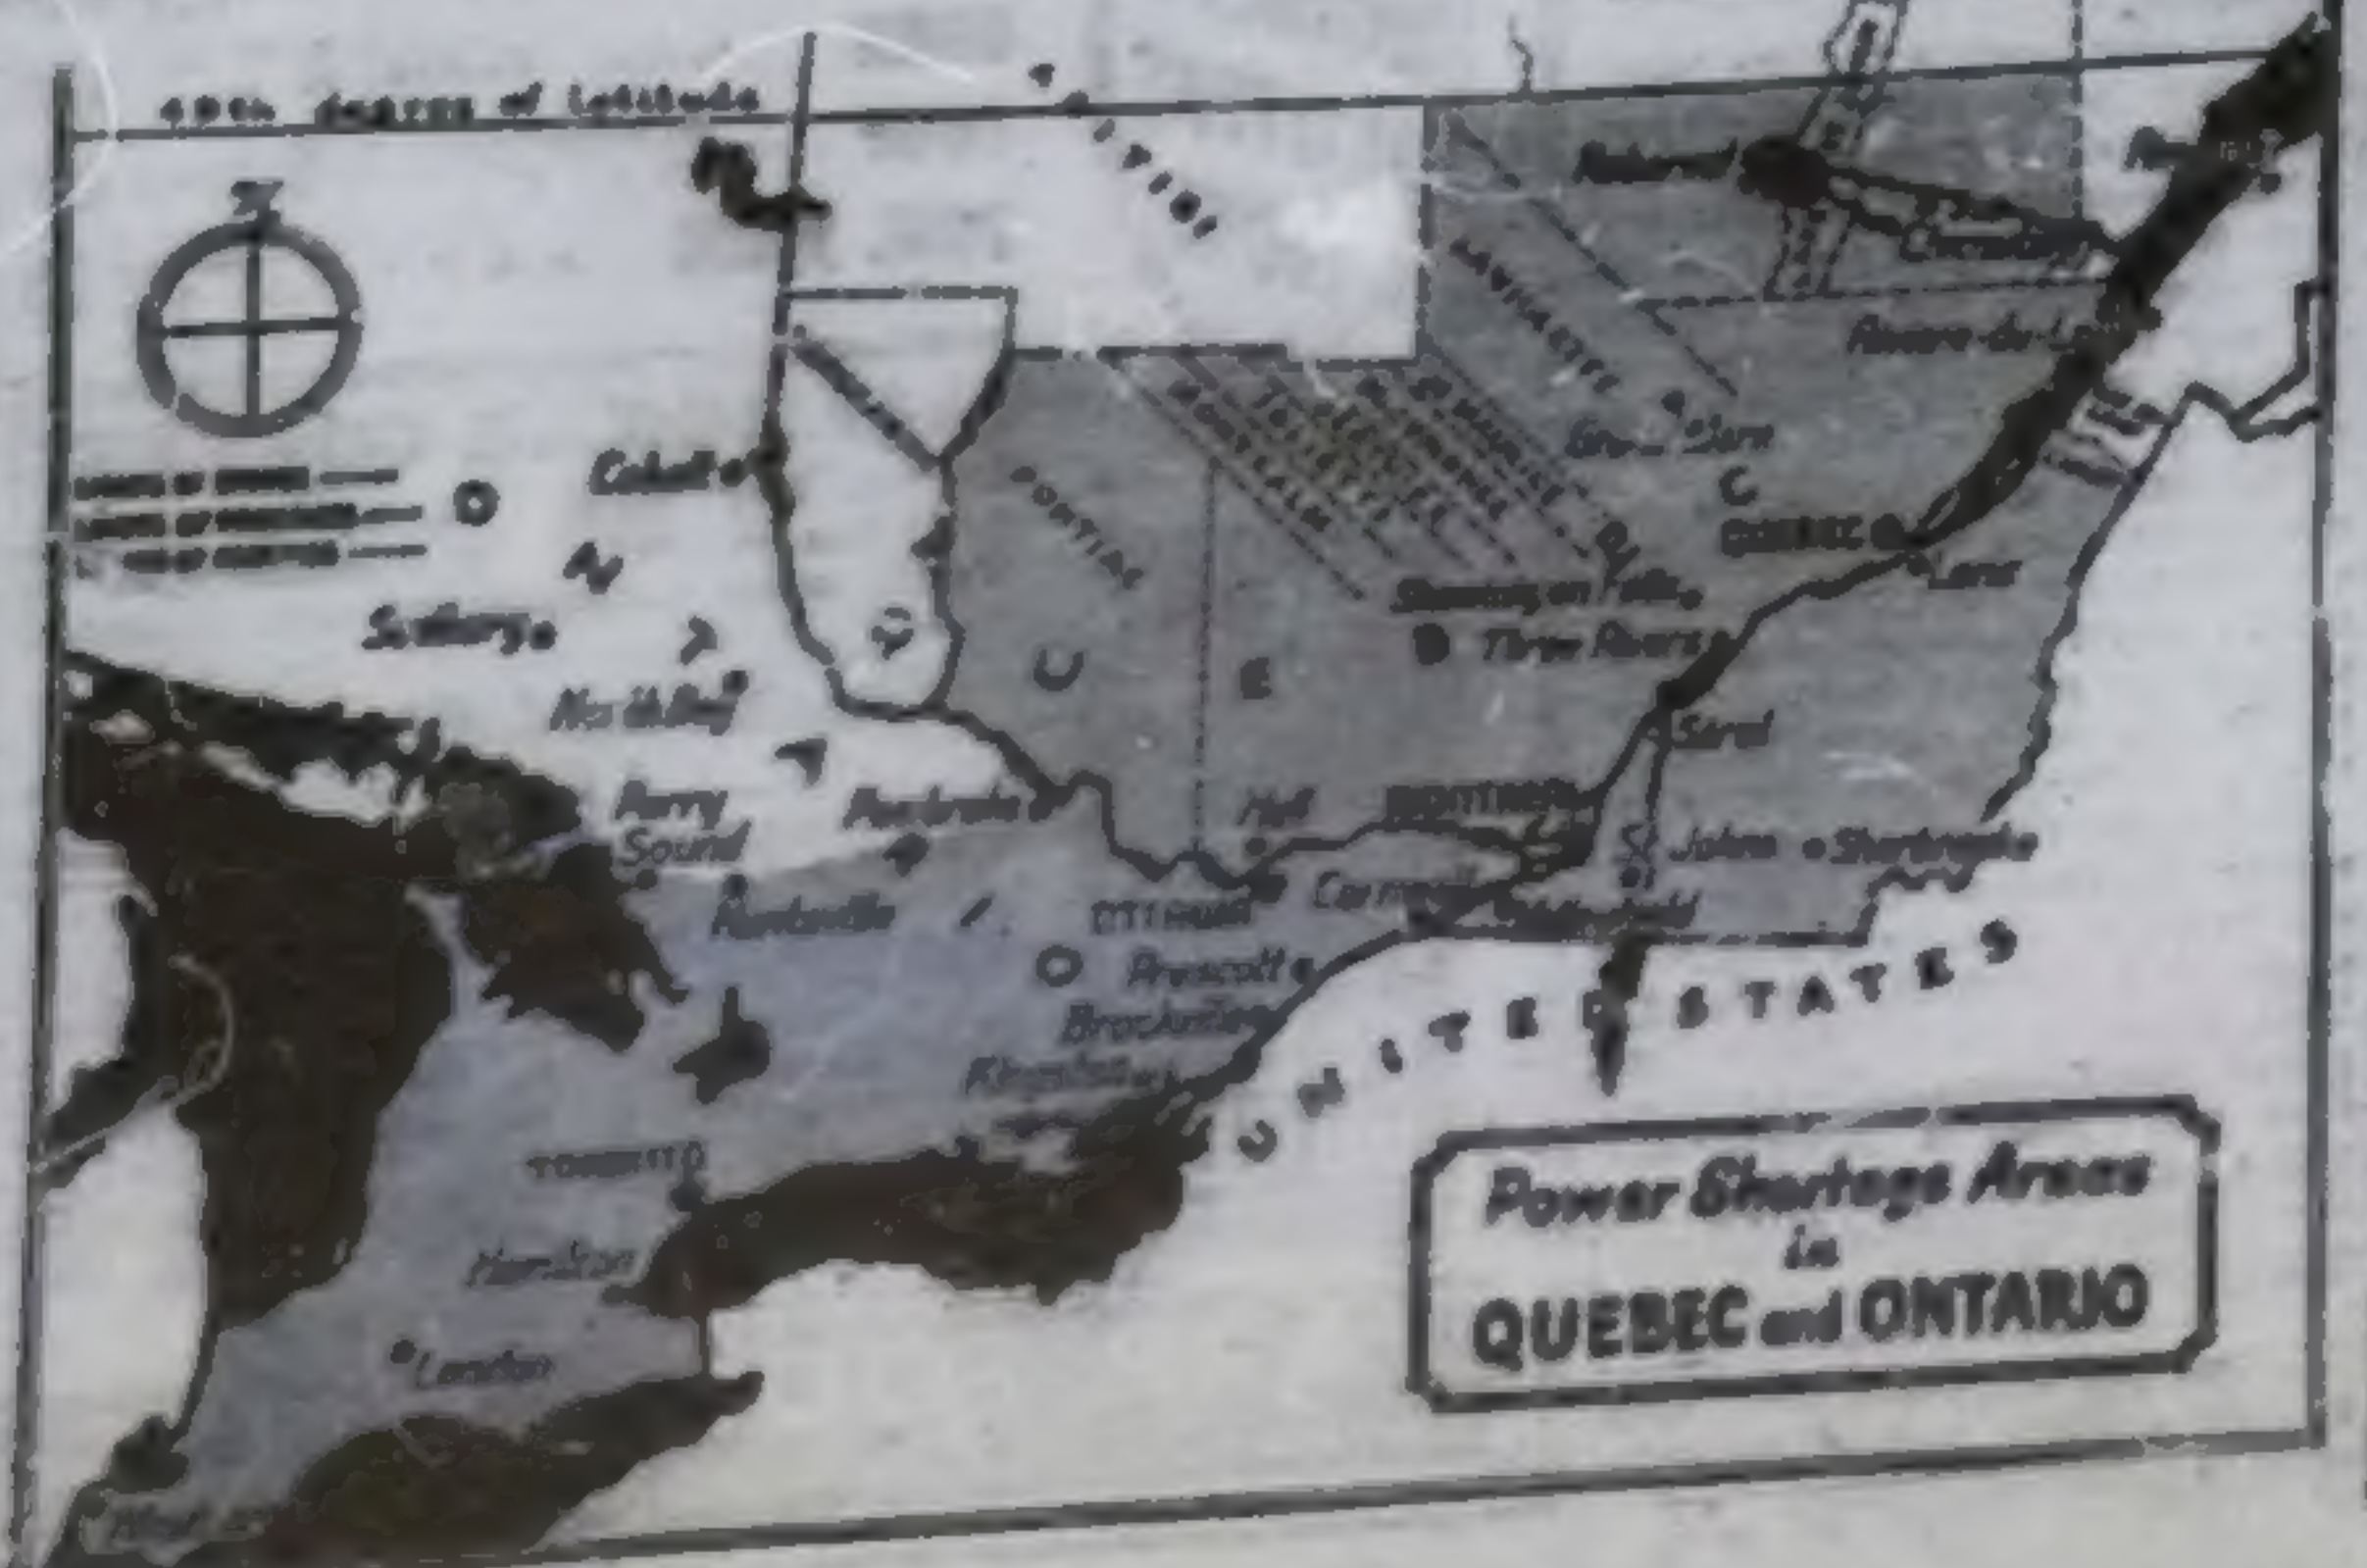

The result of all this is that there is less writing and more reading in wartime Britain. Men and women in the service, stationed far from home and cut off from normal life, turn to fiction in their spare time because there's little else to do. Books are out faster when they are circulated through-out an army camp or ship. Consequently the demand for books is greater than the supply. The value of book sales in 1941 was the highest it had been in five years.

"Books were never more important to the country than they are today," said Archibald MacLennan, Librarian of Congress, when he was in Britain last summer. "If the coarse and brutal high school boys who made the St. Boniface could understand the power of a free man's books well enough to burn them, we in this country can understand the power of these books well enough to honor them and to treat them as the things they are: the strongest and most enduring weapons in our fight to make the world a world in which the free can live in freedom."

Shortage Of New Books In Britain

War has sharpened the appetite of the British for new books. But for the duration the people will have to go hungry, or else be satisfied with the old literary works.

Paper shortage and the bottleneck in the bookbinding trade, due to the shortage of labor, have restricted the output of new books. And many of the established authors are spending their time on war work. Unknown writers have a slim chance of making names for themselves, because publishers do not dare risk putting valuable paper into a book which might not sell. Even if a new writer should

Laundry Test Of Material Samples Tells Whether Garments Will Shrink

One of the most disappointing things that can happen to garments is to have them shrink or stretch. Either misfortune may happen when a garment is being dry-cleaned or laundered. Many fabrics are now so treated that merchants can guarantee that they will not shrink more than one percent. But if no such guarantee comes with the fabric, then a sample should be tested.

To make the laundry test cut a rectangular sample of known size from the sample of material. An easy way to be sure of size is to fasten the sample to a piece of paper and carefully cut along the warp and filling yarns through both cloth and paper.

Detach the sample from the paper and wash and iron it. Compare the size of the washed and ironed sample with the size of the paper which was cut at the same time. While it is being laundered the sample will lose some of the yarns along the edges, and so it will be impossible to calculate the exact amount of shrinkage that has occurred, but if there has been any shrinkage the fabric should be shrunk before the garment is cut.

Fabrics that are not to be washed should be tested for both shrinkage and stretching. If they are dry-cleaned they will be subject to steam pressing, and this has an effect similar to washing. To test such fabrics make samples as for the laundering test, and steam by placing under a damp cloth, ironing over the cloth. This will give some clue as to their probable behavior when they go to the dry cleaner.

Sometimes a ready-made garment must be tested before it is cleaned in order to discover whether it may be laundered or must be dry cleaned. Since there is no extra material available, some removable portion of the dress, such as the belt, must be used for the test. Thread-mark a small rectangle in an inconspicuous place on this part of the dress and try the pressing test first. Follow this with the laundering test if possible.

HOW TO COUNT

Count your garden by the flowers;
Never by the leaves that fall.
Count your days by golden hours;
Don't remember clouds at all.
Count your nights by stars, not shadows;
Count your life with smiles, not tears;
And with joy on every birthday
Count your age by friends, not years.

Christmas Gifts Being Sent Boys Held By Germans

By GARRY ALLIGHAN

London—Canadian soldiers captured at Dieppe and now languishing in German prison camps, manacled and in chains, are going to have a happier Christmas than was at first thought. A special steamer chug-chugged from a British port the other day on its Santa Claus trips laden with as many comforts and goodies as any reindeer sled slithering out the front doors of any Canadian home. It is the second stage of a whirlwind drive which won't end until thousands of miles of sea and land have been traversed, bringing Canadian gifts to camps where Canadian sons face a Christmas in chains.

This strangest of strange Yuletides for those 1,800 men began when the Canadian Red Cross in Toronto cabled Colonel Scott, overseas commissioner, instructing him to rush supplies to the prisoners so Christmas in captivity would be marked with touches of home. Colonel Scott's "firing from the hip" administration exceeded even previous exploits of organization. Within an hour London headquarters looked as if a blitz had hit it. Thirty voluntary workers rushed to the job of packing 1,800 boxes with Christmas gifts. Streamlined organizational methods, with 30 workers on a kind of invisible conveyor belt, took 1,800 sheets of cardboard, twisted them into 1,800 boxes with gummed edges and passed them along lengthy trestle tables where 33 different items stood—33 different mounds which rapidly diminished as each box was packed. Weigh—11 lbs., each box of comforts for Canadian captives was then rapidly sealed, strung, plastered with a blank label and rushed down a chute for packing in large crates which were rushed by motor vans from Canada Mayfair to the docks, and were loaded in the hold of a ship which will weather the Bay of Biscay and discharge its cargo of kindness into a Red Cross ship of mercy, and thence to the prison camp.

Every box contained three pairs of socks, turtle neck sweaters, scarf, balacava helmet, underwear, pyjamas, shirts, towels, shaving kit, hairbrush and comb, three handkerchiefs, chewing gum and a comfort bag containing 14 items such as soap, tooth brush and other toiletries. Every item impregnated with love and longing from those at home which had been stitched into garments and woven into the wool knitted by hundreds of kind hands in Red Cross groups throughout the Dominion.

In addition to the box of comforts, the Canadian Red Cross are providing 1,800 manacled men with cigarettes and foodstuffs. To give the Dieppe heroes alone that Christmas cheer has set back the Canadian Red Cross more than $25,000, but said Scott: "What does money count when the happiness of those grand boys is at stake."

As the Red Cross workers packed those 80,000 articles the Bishop of Southampton, from whose diocese a historic expedition set out for Dieppe, was conducting in that famous church, St. Martin's in the fields, under the shadow of Nelson's column, a service of remembrance for prisoners of war. As the church full of 2,000 prisoners' relatives bustled in tearful prayer, 20 Red Cross workers were coupling faith and work. And as the bishop prayed—"God be with those in enemy prison camps, specially those in chains"—first of all of cases left "Canadian Red Cross headquarters for the docks."

Little Attention Now Will Help Out In The Spring

Nothing is more forlorn than frozen stalks of annual flowering plants left in the garden over winter. All the annuals should be pulled up by the roots. Perennials should be cut down once they become frozen, and leaves raked up for garden mulch. Fall is not the season for pruning, but it is an excellent time to clean up trees and shrubs by removing dead or broken branches.

Don't place hot ashes or coals in paper or cardboard boxes when cleaning out the furnace or fireplace. It's a quick way of having a fire.

Away Back When

— By FRANK FAIRBORN, Jr. —

Things always happen in a bunch—like bananas. I have so much stuff at my finger tips this week that I could fill ten columns, let alone one. So I am just going to let the old typewriter ramble and where ever Ye Ed, uses the blue pencil it'll be all copasetic with me.

The Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, the one and only tragically performing Premier that Ontario has ever had, busted into the limelight again and succeeded in doing what Stalin, Timoshenko and the Russians have failed to do—drove the Nazis off the front page of the Globe and Mail. "Mitch" is the man that gave me and a lot of the boys "Hepburnitis" in 1934. Now he has suffered from an attack of his own disease.

In his stead he promoted to the Premiership, the man who has so faithfully and sensibly enforced your laws and my laws, the Hon. Gordon Goddard. I know nothing of the new leader personally, other than what he has proven to all Ontario and the rest of Canada as our Attorney-General. But I do know something about his gracious consent.

Away back a lot of Harvest Moons ago our new Premier must have had an eye, not only for pulchritude, but for mental capacity (and don't forget the domestic end of it either) for he met and wooed successfully Verna Rowena Smith, only daughter of Senator E. D. and the late Mrs. Smith. The pictures in the Globe and Mail on Thursday last of Mrs. Conant, to me, were not pictures of her, but of her mother. She is the image of her mother, who was one of the finest women that ever resided in our midst.

Verna Rowena, like her illustrious brother Brig-General Armand A. Smith, went to school in Grimsby. She to high school, he to Lake Lodge.

Bob Lewis, the worst Tory that ever came out of Barton township, is very pleased with the fact that Mr. Conant is our new Premier, even if he is a drafted Gent, and cites me the fact that Mrs. Conant is of Tory birth not only on the paternal side of the house but also on the maternal side. The late Mrs. E. D. Smith was an Armstrong from Lambton county and her brother was a Tory Federal member for that constituency for years.

My sincerest compliments to you, Senator Smith, that in the glowing sunset of your life, your son-in-law should become the Premier of Ontario.

A young man left Grimsby one day last week for "Somewhere on the Front Line." No matter where that front line may be, Grimsby, Canada and the world will hear from this lad.

He was Living—"Cap" Foster, a true son of Grimsby and a nation of the Dominion.

"Cap" is a full-fledged Pilot Officer in the R.C.A.F. and holds an aviator's record already with that unit, as a flyer and instructor. He comes of fighting stock. A streak through their veins the blood of freedom has coursed for centuries.

His father was a full blooded Canadian Indian and his Mother is an Englishwoman whose ancestors date back to the days of Drake and his crew, and Bowie.

On the 16th day of August 1914, there marched out of Grimsby on their way to Valcartier, Lieut. J. A. M. Livingston and "most Long and 22 men of "Fighting B" Squadron, 2nd Dragoons. In that lot was Walton Foster—the Father of "Cap" and also Walton's buddy, Scotty Sutton, who was destined to become "Cap's" uncle. This little band of men went overseas with the 13th Batt. 48th Highlanders of Toronto.

On leave from the mud and slime of Salisbury Plains he went with "Scotty" to the latter's home in Friesfield, near Farnby in Lancashire and there he met Miss Margaret Sutton. At the battle of Langemarck and St. Julien where the Canadians got their baptism of fire and incidentally the first gas used in the war, Walton Foster was wounded and taken a prisoner. For four long, weary years he was a prisoner and forced to work in the salt mines and subjected to untold cruelties.

Upon his return to England after the Armistice and before returning to Canada he married Miss Sutton and from that union came "Cap". Walton Foster never recovered from the injuries and cruelties of those German salt mine years and suffered untold agonies for many years after his return until the Good Lord saw fit to take him to his long home in 1938.

And so folks I say unto you; if ever a fighting-man with a clean, keen brain; a heart of steel; a love of mother, wife, child, home, country and Empire, ever went forth to do battle and give his all, it is Livingston "Cap" Foster.

Buy a Victory Bond. Buy a half a dozen of them. "Cap" is doing more than that for YOU.

Prisoner Of War

A cablegram has been received by Mrs. Harry Tice, (nee Irene Dancer), of Grimsby Beach, formerly of Smithville, stating that her husband, who had been reported missing, is now a prisoner of war in Germany.

Snow Flurries

The season's first snow flurries about the Grimsby area for several minutes at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and quickly melted. The mercury was about 40 degrees for this rather early snow "storm," but the Grimsby area was rather fortunate compared to western New York, south of Buffalo, where a prolonged blizzard piled up more than eight inches of snow and brought snow removal equipment out of summer storage to keep highways open.

BINGO! BINGO!

Followers of the great indoor pastime of Bingo can get all set for a big winter of fun and prize winning at their favorite game.

West Lincoln Branch, Canadian Legion, will open the winter bingo season TONIGHT, in Hawke's Hall, Grimsby. This is the first of the winter series and a large crowd is expected to be on hand.

Last season the Legion conducted a Bingo series and in this manner succeeded in raising a considerable sum of money for local charities and expect to raise much more this season.

At the last regular meeting of the Legion donations of $50 each were made to Grimsby and Beamsville war services and $25 to Smithville Red Cross.

Heavy Mailing Of Soldiers' Parcels

Grimsby post office was a busy place on Wednesday night when Postmaster Somley and his staff handled and sent out on the 8.04 train nearly 300 parcels for Grimsby boys in the armed forces overseas.

The full shipment of 125 parcels from the ladies of the I. O. O. F. were sent on their way as well as two large bags of private parcels.

For the past week there have been two and three full bags of parcels leave the local office and Mr. Somley expects two or three times that quantity every night next week. The dead line for mailing parcels for overseas is November 10th.

Personals

Thomas Gammage, of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, is home for a short leave after being discharged from Chertsey Park, the military hospital in Toronto. He will be returning to Toronto Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gammage were in Grimsby for a short while last week following their marriage at London. Mr. Gammage is a brother of Thomas Gammage, and is attached to the Royal Canadian Medical Corps.

Pictures of War

dian government, but with the Canadian people. "It is a contract which tells a soldier what time to get up, and what time to go to bed; what to eat and when to eat it; what to wear and when to wear it; and—when to die."

Straining the need of support for the Victory Loan, he pointed out that every time the soldiers of Canada's army sat down to eat, it cost $250,000. He said that the soldiers were placing a great dependence on the people at home to raise the six dollars per week per man required. "God help us if we don't deliver the goods this time; we won't get another chance," he warned.

JIM SAYS

IT CAN BE DONE

Jim finds times hard. His standard of living has dropped. There are all these new taxes.

Now there's another Victory Loan and Jim is expected to subscribe.

"Rock bottom!" was Jim's first thought. "We're on rock bottom. Just can't find the money!"

He's thought some more since. And he's decided it can be done. Jim says he doubts if Merritt lost much time wondering if it could be done when he crossed that bridge at Disappe.
